About IRTF

The InterReligious Task Force on Central America (IRTF) is a Cleveland-based nonprofit that promotes peace and human rights in Central America and Colombia. For the past 38 years, IRTF has brought together people in Greater Cleveland from various faith and secular communities to act in solidarity with oppressed peoples in Latin America through consciousness-raising and direct consumer and political advocacy. Formed after the murder of two Cleveland church women in El Salvador in 1980, IRTF is dedicated to carrying forward their legacy by working for economic justice, environmental protections, and cultural integrity of peoples throughout the region.

Please email us at promotions@irtfcleveland.org or call 216.961.0003 by Wednesday, May 8 if your organization is interested in sponsoring .

All the best,
Dance Gala Volunteer Team

Education, Advocacy, & Nonviolent Action for Human Rights

The InterReligious Task Force on Central America was founded by people in Cleveland as a nonviolent response to the armed violence being waged in Central America during the 1980s. For more than three decades, IRTF has promoted peace and justice by creating ties of solidarity between the people of northeast Ohio and oppressed peoples in Central America and Colombia. IRTF empowers local people to advocate for government policy changes, call for corporate accountability, and make consumer choices that can create positive, structural change for the people of Latin America. Contributions to IRTF, a 501(c)(3) tax exempt organization, are fully tax deductible as permitted by law. IRTF is a member of Cleveland Jobs with Justice and Community Shares of Greater Cleveland, which supports local nonprofit organizations working for long-term, sustainable, solutions to build a stronger Cleveland. Learn more about Community Shares and supporting social justice through workplace giving at www.communityshares.org.
